

SOCIAL LIFE IN OKLAHOMA

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

It may be said of society in Oklahoma, it cannot be called provincial. People have come here from everywhere and have brought with them the customs and thoughts of their old homes. Their thoughts have been forced to a new order of things. The foundation of a social life is the foundation of the state. The customs of every section of the United States with many things are altogether new and unique. People who came here from Boston have brought with them the customs of the old New England. The man who came here from the old New England has forsaken the old New England and has come here to the new Oklahoma. The old New England has been left behind and the new Oklahoma has been born. The old New England has been left behind and the new Oklahoma has been born. The old New England has been left behind and the new Oklahoma has been born.

Oklahoma City is the metropolis of the new state and may be taken for granted. When the territory was opened the people poured in from the south and halfway town. They met on the streets and the old New England has been left behind and the new Oklahoma has been born. The old New England has been left behind and the new Oklahoma has been born. The old New England has been left behind and the new Oklahoma has been born.

Church life and social life are inseparable in such a community as this. The early days many of the settlers came in were Methodists. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one.

How have we now? Educational institutions are in their fourth year with more than a hundred matriculated students. North or South, do you ask? Neither, but both. Here for the first time in this country have the two great religions of the world, the Christian and the Mohammedan, been united in a common purpose. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one.

Baptists are strong and have had a great influence on the life of the city. The Baptist churches are known as the "White Temple." It is a beautiful structure, which cost $100,000. The segregation numbers more than a hundred. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one.

Soon wealth made its appearance. Not all of these folks became rich, but most of them had been very poor before they came to Oklahoma. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one.

These clubs today are one of the most interesting features of the social life of the new State. Their size and influence is greater here, perhaps, than in any other section of the country. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one. The church and the community were one.

are a proven remedy. They possess corrective properties which act favorably upon the several organs and induce free and regular movements, so very essential to the bodily health. Do not fail to give instant attention to the calls of Nature. Neglect invites disease. Beecham's Pills are the old and reliable safeguard of health and can always be depended upon to practical charge of charity work, the public library and all sorts of civic improvement.

It is to them that much of the credit is due for the fact that Oklahoma City, built on a treeless plain, has more shade trees along its streets than any other town of its size. They are planted at intervals of twelve and a half feet and really are too thickly set.

Naturally, with the growth of the city and the increase of wealth, there came to be a "smart set." These are those that have prospered, who have built themselves magnificent homes, who own motor cars and care to play the game. The same "smart set" is likewise for those who have not wealth, nor mansions nor motor cars, but who do care to play the game. The standards of society are those of any other small city as to morals, wit and beauty. They are liberal and democratic as regards ancestry and patrimony, and if the desire to be in the swim is strong enough, respectable poverty is not a bar.

The foundations of social intercourse in the new country are not forgotten. It has been but eighteen years. That is to say that the church attendance is much larger here than in older towns, that there is a lively interest in secret society affairs which is more general than in the East. The women have learned to depend upon their organizations not only for social diversion, but as a swift and sure means of obtaining those minor reforms in local government which their lord and masters are too dignified or too indifferent to fight for. Such is social life in a new American city—a little more highly organized than in older places, a little less insistent upon pedigree, and always earnestly striving to be at the top. Of the cowboy and his comrades there is nothing left but a memory, and the smiling girl of the ranch lives only in the story books.

LINGERING COLD.
Withstood Other Treatment But Quickly Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"Last winter I caught a very severe cold which lingered for weeks," says J. Urquhart, of Zephyr, Ontario. "My cough was very dry and harsh. The local dealer recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and guaranteed it, so I gave it a trial. One small bottle of it cured me. I believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be the best I have ever used." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

No wife of a man who works for day's wages will vote for Fernstrom or Hall for the Council. These men think $1.50 a day sufficient for the man who works. If they have a voice in the Council for the next year, they will establish $1.50 as the scale for the city. This will reach other lines of work. A general trimming down, in face of high prices for living, will bring suffering to thousands of homes. VOTE AGAINST HALL AND FERNSTROM. No greater enemies of good wages are in the city. Vote them down, and see to it that your friends do likewise. LIFT THE LEVER OVER THEIR NAMES. It is easy, and if you feel like voting for two men who believe the man who toils should be paid a good wage, pull down the lever marked "6" in the American column. In the third ward this will be for McGinty and in the fourth for Harris.

Fairbanks Calls on Teddy.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Vice-President Fairbanks paid his respects to President Roosevelt today. He said that Mrs. Fairbanks had come to Washington to remain for the session. Fairbanks said he did not talk politics or legislation with the President and had no political statement to make at this time.
